SAMMY TAKAHASHI

Warm welcome to SELC Language College. SELC was established in Sydney, Australia in 1985. I was involved in starting its Canadian branch school in Vancouver in 2012, where I served as the principal until 2016. I currently oversee the English language programs.

There are many English language schools around the world. What differentiates SELC from others is our unique concept of Active Teaching and Active Learning (ATAL). The moment you walk into our school, you can feel the difference. Our students are very active and lively, which creates a great learning environment. You'll learn English as if you were engaged in playing a sport.

We've developed our teaching method based on the above concept. SELC's approach will help you command English communication skills faster and more effectively than other commonly used teaching methods. SELC's focus is always speaking and listening with an emphasis on good pronunciation and being able to talk in front of people. Come to SELC Language College. I look forward to helping you become fluent in English.

PUBLIC SPEAKING

Many people are afraid of speaking in public, let alone speaking publicly in a different language! In our public speaking classes, students learn to overcome their fears of speaking in public and in English through fun and confidence-building activities. There will be a focus on developing fluency of language use rather than grammatical accuracy, learners will become more aware of their personal strengths and weaknesses, express their preferences in an assertive way, as well as to be able to express ideas in small or large group situations with a higher level of confidence.

ACCURATE PRONUNCIATION

It is one thing to study a language; it is another to use it, understand it, and be understood. This class will help students to speak more naturally and confidently. Correct pronunciation, rhythm, word linking, stress, and intonation are just some of the things that will be taught and practiced. Students will also be given more feedback on their speaking to improve this important skill.

ENGLISH IDIOMS AND EXPRESSIONS

Language evolves over time, and the way people talked five years ago can be quite different to how we talk today. By learning and practicing popular phrases or current words, students will be able to have conversations with native speakers normally without sounding like they came from the past.

BUSINESS ENGLISH

Students who travel abroad to learn English often stay to find work as well. In this class, students will learn how to ease into an English-speaking work environment. The class will develop students' skills necessary to communicate effectively in various business contexts. It intends to provide students with opportunities for appropriate use of business English. It focuses on effective speaking and writing of business correspondence achieved through conventions, appropriate diction and purpose. Essential skills such as preparing for job interviews, conducting business meetings, or using jargon will help students be prepared for work.

EVERYDAY ENGLISH

The focus of this class is on providing the skills, vocabulary, and practice necessary in order to function in an English-speaking society. By using roleplay and dialogue activities on situations such as ordering at restaurants, asking for directions, or asking for help at a store, this class will prepare students for common situations they may face while living abroad.
